Established SEO agencies will usually charge between Ksh. 50000 – Ksh. 500000 per month for their services, depending on the amount of time your project requires.

The amount of days your website will need per month will vary greatly depending on the industry and type of website you have.

For example, SEO for online shops (eCommerce) requires more time to be spent working with developers to improve the technical SEO aspects of the website than a B2B or B2C lead gen website does.

Lead generation websites will usually require less time per month, but can require more – depending on how competitive the industry is.

SEO is search engine optimisation. SEO works by optimising specific on-page and off-page aspects of your website and brand to gain better visibility by searching keywords relevant to your website. Any platform with a search bar can be SEO'd. Think Google, Bing, Amazon, eBay, Yandex, Duckduckgo, Youtube, and more. Most Kenyan business owners know SEO is the best way to grow their business, with 60% of marketers now agreeing SEO generates the highest quality leads. But what many business owners who haven't used an SEO company before don't know is how much they can expect to pay for SEO, and what they can expect to receive for their money.

Established SEO agencies will usually charge between Ksh. 50000 – Ksh. 500000 per month for their services, depending on the amount of time your project requires.

The amount of days your website will need per month will vary greatly depending on the industry and type of website you have.

For example, SEO for online shops (eCommerce) requires more time to be spent working with developers to improve the technical SEO aspects of the website than a B2B or B2C lead gen website does.

Lead generation websites will usually require less time per month, but can require more – depending on how competitive the industry is.

Companies who hire consultants will usually use their services for an hour a month to get feedback from an SEO expert who can help guide their marketing team in the right direction.

The price of an SEO consultant will depend on their experience level and specific area of expertise, but you can expect to pay anywhere from Ksh. 10000 per hour to Ksh. 100000 per hour.

It's important to establish whether or not the consultant has worked in a similar industry before. They don't have to have worked for a competitor, but a similar type of SEO is crucial.

There are 3 main pricing structures when it comes to SEO, these are: monthly retainers, hourly and per project.

The monthly retainer SEO service is perfect for companies that are looking to partner with an agency who'll help them grow their business long term.

By having an established retainer in place, you'll have guaranteed access to a dedicated SEO professional (at most agencies) who'll dig deep into what search terms potential customers are typing into Google, identify any new trends in your industry and create in depth plans of action to achieve first page rankings.

You are essentially employing the services of a company who dedicate 100% of their time to SEO and the latest updates in Google's algorithm to position your business higher online.

Having that sort of resource available to your business on a monthly basis can do powerful things for a company, especially if you're in a competitive industry where your competitors are dominating most search queries.

The only downside is most SEO agencies lock you into lengthy 12, 16 or 24 month contracts for their services to ensure their employee's have a high level of job security.

(we don't do this by the way, we let our results keep clients coming back)

The hourly SEO service is ideal for companies with an in-house marketing team that might be a little bit stuck with their SEO and want some advice from an expert who can point them in the right direction to grow their traffic.

This is why the hourly pricing structure is most suited to SEO consultants who'll often be incredibly experienced and knowledgeable.

The SEO consultation will usually be conducted via a VOIP service like Skype and will typically consist of you explaining what you're trying to achieve and the consultant advising you on your best course of action.

The hourly fee for a consultant can be very expensive, but the value you can get out of them can be a complete game changer, if you have a team of marketers who can action the advice given.

The main downside to hiring an SEO consultant is that you'll be fully responsible for project management, meaning you'll only get out of the session what you can actually action.

And if SEO isn't your primary job role, an SEO agency will be far more efficient and faster at implementing changes that see results as they do it on a daily basis. This allows your employees to spend less time actioning SEO tasks and more time doing what they're actually good at.

The per project SEO pricing structure is often seen as very attractive by less experienced business owners who are looking for quick hacks to business success.

The unfortunate reality of these services is they're often very dangerous to your website domain name and business as a whole.

You'll often find various bad reviews online for companies who offer cheap SEO services where customers have had their entire website penalised by Google for using black hat SEO tactics like using PBN's or spam backlinks.

The problem is that companies who charge per project need to get the job done as fast as possible, which means they'll have to cut corners and take big risks to get you results.

If you're happy to risk getting your website removed from Google, some of these services can increase your traffic – but we wouldn't advise it for any company interested in the long term results of SEO.

If you're considering using the lower cost SEO services, you'll get far more for your money by setting up a Google Ads account yourself and paying per click – there's no risk involved and you'll protect your domain name and online reputation for when you have the budget to invest in professional SEO services.

In compiling this list of the top SEO companies in Nairobi, we came up with a criterion on how agencies would make it to this list. There are a lot of agencies especially the major ones who have it just on paper as part of their service offerings but have never offered it as a service to any Kenyan businesses.

During the compilation of this list, we also noted that some agencies did not even have SEO experts on staff yet had it listed as a service offering. So below is the Criteria that we followed to compile this list.

We wanted this list to capture SEO experts in Nairobi, so it was important that we started by looking out for Agencies that specialized exclusively in SEO. We figured out that only Sprout Media Specializes exclusively in SEO. The rest of Digital marketing companies in Kenya had SEO as a service offering but were not specialists. We, therefore, opted on adding a little bit of a leeway to accommodate at least 15 SEO companies in Nairobi.

The next step involved analyzing Google reviews of digital marketing agencies in Kenya who offered SEO as a service and actually had the capacity in house to deliver on SEO projects. We were looking for positive reviews which reinforces the point that these agencies had actually delivered on projects to the satisfaction of clients.

This is an important factor in choosing an SEO partner in Nairobi.

We also looked at referring domains to websites of these agencies as we needed to see if they were an authority in the SEO space and be sure they were actually working on building backlink networks for their own businesses.

You want to buy cakes from a baker who eats their cakes. We wanted to be sure they were practising what they were preaching to Nairobi businesses.

We also checked a series of minor SEO housekeeping basics, Like ensuring their sites and those of clients they handled had SSL certificates, Were mobile friendly and had great loading speeds.

These are basic housekeeping details that give you an idea of how seriously the agency takes its SEO business practices.

Finally, we looked out to ensure the agencies were putting out valuable content on SEO or just putting out fresh content to improve on their SEO and provide value to Kenyan marketers and business owners.

SEO is very important to local businesses. You should be concerned with your site's rankings as long as you want to be in business. To get organic traffic, you have to have excellent SEO, especially when more and more businesses use the world wide web for advertising their products and services. Nevin DigitalMarketing Agency is a Nairobi SEO company that can get your website to page one of Google!

While in the western world SEO is a huge component of businesses online strategies, Nairobi is yet to catch up and a lot of businesses don't do any form of SEO. Our inhouse estimates point at over 65% of small businesses not doing any form of SEO.

This is disappointing considering SEO is one of the most powerful tools small businesses can use to outdo the bigger players and build massive traffic and new customers into their businesses. Most Digital marketing agencies in Nairobi offer the service only on paper and actually don't have the in-house capacity to deliver results through SEO for businesses. That is why we compiled this list. To give businesses owners a list of agencies they could approach for their SEO needs.

Nevin Digital is the only agency in Nairobi which exclusively offer SEO as a service. Most agencies just have it on paper or among the other 15 services they offer in the digital marketing space.

However, more Nairobi companies are taking a keen look at how to scale their businesses through digital marketing and SEO in Nairobi is starting to grow and we hope more businesses will take advantage of this goldmine.

Most SEO companies in Kenya will tell you that it takes 4 to 6 months to start seeing results. That's generally accurate, but bear in mind this is when you start seeing results, and SEO results grow over time. Whatever results you're getting at 6 months should be considerably less than what you're getting at 12 months.

SEO is probably more important for a small business than it is for a large one. A large business has the cash to maintain big ad budgets. They often already have an established brand, as well as a track record of success. A small business is still building these things, and while they do, they need to get noticed. And an effective SEO campaign is one of the best ways to do that.

We strongly advise against starting and stopping Search Engine Optimization. SEO is not a sprint, it is a marathon, and results take time to develop, and it's through continual efforts that those results keep up. By stopping, you will lose momentum in the SERPs that someone else, such as your competition, will take advantage of and rise above you, and get in front of your customers.
