House moving costs in Nairobi starts from around Ksh. 10, 000 (for very small moves or transport of specific items) and range up to Ksh. 100, 000 or more depending on the property and how much stuff you need moving, as well as how far it needs to go. Here are the main factors that will contribute to how much a moving company is going to charge you:

Size of the move.

It's a no-brainer but you can't expect to move on a budget if you're living in a 5-bedroom house and more than 1 van is required for the transportation of all household items. The bigger the move, the more expensive it gets. Take a better look at what to be careful of before and during the relocation if you want to lower the cost of moving house. If you're going to compare removals prices, always compare your quote with one for the exact same move.

If you're living on rent, your end of the lease agreement with the landlord probably requires you to leave the property clean before vacating it. You don't need to contact a cleaning company for the job. Most professional moving companies have expert cleaners at their disposal. Simply mention that you'll need help with a move out cleaning service and the sales agent will provide you with a quote for it. This will in turn increase the amount of money you will pay by Ksh. 5, 000 depending on the size of the house.
